Liontown Resources Limited ACN 118 153 825 (Company)

1 Purpose

The Company is committed to conducting itself with integrity, honesty and fairness in all business practices and to observing the rule and spirit of the legal and regulatory environment in which the Company operates.

The purpose of this Code of Conduct is to:

- (a) establish the standards of behaviour expected of the Board, senior executives and all other employees of the Company when dealing with each other, shareholders, other stakeholders and the broader community;
- (b) establish, promote and uphold the Company's values;
- (c) maintain confidence in the Company's integrity and support the Company's business reputation and corporate image within the community;
- (d) take into account the Company's legal obligations and the reasonable expectations of its stakeholders;
- (e) set out the responsibility and accountability of individuals for reporting and investigating reports of unethical practices; and
- (f) make directors and employees aware of the consequences if they breach this Code of Conduct.

This Code aims to ensure that the Company delivers on its commitment to integrity, honesty and fairness in its business practices, and to observing the rule and spirit of the legal and regulatory environment in which the Company operates but it does not create any rights in any person including any employee, client, customer, supplier, competitor or shareholder.

This Code applies in addition to, and not to the exclusion of, the Company's other policies and procedures including its Policy on Continuous Disclosure, Shareholder Communication Policy, Securities Trading Policy, Diversity Policy and Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy as amended from time to time.

2 Who does this Code of Conduct apply to?

All directors, officers and employees must comply with this Code. The Board will also make advisers, consultants and contractors aware of the Company's expectations as set out in this Code.

This Code applies to all business activities with suppliers, contractors, customers, shareholders, competitors and employees in Australia and overseas.

Responsibility lies with each person covered by this Code to conduct themselves in accordance with this Code. If you have any questions about the Code, you should speak to the Company Secretary.

3 Values

The Company's activities are guided by six key values:

- (a) Safety – First, do no harm. In all our activities we must send everyone home safe, every day. This relates to not only our employees but also to our contractors, suppliers and to the communities in which we operate.
- (b) Sustainability – Batteries made from the lithium we produce are the key enabler of a low carbon economy. To meet the needs of the current generation, we must find and develop these resources, but we must do so in a way that reduces the environmental effects for future generations. Sustainability must be a core concept in all our operations. With our customers, we work towards a partnership in which the raw materials we produce are used efficiently and responsibly.

- (c) Integrity. We have many stakeholders who expect great things from us. We must deliver on our commitments while meeting high standards of conduct. We have the courage to do the right thing, even when it is the harder thing. We don't take 'shortcuts'.
- (d) Respect – our work involves many relationships and many stakeholders with diverse objectives. We ensure all voices are respectfully heard and work toward solutions that balance the interests of all stakeholders.
- (e) Ambition – we don't just want to do well; we want to do better. We plan well, we act on these plans, but then we study to identify how we can improve for next time. The challenge of constant improvement is what motivates us. We set objectives and then discover how these can be achieved.
- (f) Sense of Team – We are a group of people who get together to do important work. We are inclusive. We celebrate diversity. We have fun.

All directors, officers and employees must conduct themselves in a manner to promote and uphold these values.

7 Conflicts of interest

A conflict of interest exists where loyalties are divided. You may have a conflict of interest if, in the course of your employment or engagement with the Company:

- any of your decisions lead to an improper gain or benefit to you or someone associated with you; or

- the Chair in the case of a Board member or the Managing Director, and in those circumstances, follow the Conflict of Interest Protocol adopted by the Company;
- the Managing Director in the case of a member of management; and
- a supervisor in the case of an employee, so that it may be considered and dealt with in an appropriate manner for all concerned.

8 Protection of assets

Directors, management and employees must protect the Company's assets to ensure availability for legitimate business purposes and to ensure all relevant and appropriate corporate opportunities are made available to the Company and that no property, information or position belonging to the Company or opportunity arising from these are used for personal gain or to compete with the Company.

9 Protection of confidential information

Confidential Information is information that the Company considers to be confidential and that is not generally available outside the Company and may include information of third parties to which the Company has access. It includes information that the Company owns, develops, pays to have developed or to which it has an exclusive right.

The Company and all directors, officers and employees must ensure that they do not disclose any Confidential Information to any third party or other director, officer or employee who does not have a valid business reason for receiving that information unless:

- permitted or required under relevant laws or regulations; or
- agreed by the person or organisation whose information it is.

If Confidential Information is required to be provided to third parties or other directors, officers or employees for valid business purposes, the Company and its directors, officers and employees must:

- take adequate precautions to seek to ensure that the information is only used for those purposes for which it is provided and is not misused or disseminated to the Company's detriment. Such precautions include obtaining a confidentiality agreement or other undertaking (advice about these measures can be obtained from the Company Secretary); and
- take steps to ensure that the information is returned or destroyed when the purpose is complete.

These obligations continue to apply to you after your employment or engagement with the Company ends.

Exploration shall be undertaken with care for the environment and respect for the interest of landowners and other stakeholders.

Dam facilities shall be designed and constructed with the aim of achieving long-term stability and reasonable security against disturbances.

11 Financial reporting ethics

The Company and its employees are committed to providing full, fair, accurate, timely and understandable information in the Company's public reports and other communications in accordance with applicable laws, accounting standards and relevant stock exchange listing rules and regulations.

Records and other documents should be maintained, held and stored in a proper manner and in such fashion as to maintain security, confidentiality and availability to properly authorised employees. The Company prohibits any employee from altering or destroying company records except as authorised by policies and directives.

The Consolidated Financial Statements of the Company are prepared in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards. The Company seeks to maintain a high standard of accuracy and completeness in its financial records.

The Company is committed to accurately record and properly document all accounting entries in accordance with applicable laws and regulations. The Company's internal control over financial reporting should assure that transactions are properly authorised, executed, recorded, processed, summarised and reported. Employees shall report any significant deficiencies or material weaknesses or any concerns regarding questionable accounting or auditing matters.

Financial records shall be available for inspection by management and auditors.

The Company should strive to resolve and remediate any internal control weaknesses identified by employees, external audit or other external party.

Manipulation of the corporate records, including posting fictitious entries, deliberately manipulating estimates, adjusting entries and posting any other incorrect business transactions is strictly forbidden.

12 Insider trading

Employees shall not use for their own financial gain or disclose for the use of others, inside information, obtained as a result of their employment with the Company. As an employee of a company whose shares are publicly traded, employees should be aware that there are statutory prohibitions and penalties for buying or selling shares when the employee knows material information about the affairs of the Company which have not yet been made public.

"Material Information" means information that could affect the price of the shares. It can be positive information, such as an asset acquisition, obtaining a new contract, a proposed merger or dividend, exploration results, production statistics or financial results. Material information can also be negative, such as adverse results or financial problems. If an employee of the Company acquires some material information, it is illegal to buy or sell shares of the Company before such information has been made public. Even if there is no intent to trade on the basis of confidential information, every time an employee decides to buy or sell shares of the Company, he or she should think about whether he or she has any confidential information which might make it appear that he or she is improperly trading. If an employee isn't sure if information is material or has been made public, he or she should discuss the matter with an officer of the Company.

It is also illegal to disclose material information before it has been made public, unless the disclosure is in the course of business, or to suggest that it is a good time to buy or sell the Company's stock. For example, giving confidential information to a relative or friend, who then buys or sells shares of the Company based on the information, is illegal on the part of both parties.

If found guilty of one of these offences a person can be fined and/or imprisoned. In addition, these actions are grounds for termination for cause.

These prohibitions apply to every director, officer and every employee at all levels, and not just to "insiders", such as senior officers and directors.

Additionally, the Company has a Share Trading Policy that must be followed.

13 Employment practices

The Company will seek to employ the most suitable and available persons with skills required to carry out vacant positions.

The Company will use its best endeavours to ensure a safe work place and maintain proper occupational health and safety practices commensurate with the nature of the Company's business and activities.

The Company will ensure that there are systems and procedures in place to ensure that employees are fit for work and understand their obligations in relation to the consumption of alcohol, illegal drugs and prescription medications.

14 Responsibility to the community

The Company will recognise, consider and respect environmental issues and other community concerns which arise in relation to the Company's activities and comply with all applicable legal and regulatory requirements.

You are expected to abide by all applicable legal and regulatory requirements, and are expected to respect and care for the environment in which the Company operates.

15 Responsibility to the individual

The Company recognises and respects the rights of individuals and will comply with the applicable legal rules regarding privacy, and the use of privileged or confidential information.

16 Obligations relative to fair trading and dealing

The Company will deal with others in a way that is fair and will not engage in deceptive practices.

When dealing with others, you must perform your duties in a professional manner, act with integrity and objectivity; and strive at all times to enhance the Company's reputation and performance.

17 Gifts and hospitality

From time to time you may receive gifts or hospitality in connection with or arising from your connection with the Company (Gift). You must not give, seek or accept any Gift which goes beyond common courtesies associated with general commercial practice.

You must wherever possible declare any Gift prior to receipt. If it is impractical or impossible to do so, you must disclose the Gift to the Company Secretary as soon as practicable after its receipt.

You must refuse or return (as the case may be) the Gift if directed to do so by the Managing Director or the Chair.

The section is to be read in conjunction with the Company's Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy which can be found on the Company's website at www.ltresources.com.au.

18 Financial and other inducements

Most countries, including Australia, have specific legislation prohibiting any person or company from offering a bribe to a government official or for an official to receive a bribe.

It is a criminal offence to bribe a foreign public official under the Criminal Code Act 1995 (Cth) (Criminal Code). Australian companies or individuals that bribe a foreign public official can be prosecuted under Australian law and the laws of foreign countries. There are potentially serious consequences for breaching the Criminal Code, including fines and imprisonment. The high penalties for foreign bribery reflect the seriousness of bribery and its consequences. In addition to criminal penalties, any benefits obtained by foreign bribery can be forfeited to the Australian Government under the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002 (Cth).

The offence of bribing a foreign public official has a number of elements, all of which must be present for the offence to apply. A person is guilty of an offence if:

- the person provides a benefit to another person or offers or promises to provide a benefit to another person or causes a benefit to be provided, offered or promised to another; and
- the benefit is not legitimately due to the other person; and

- the conduct described in paragraph (a) was carried out with the intention of influencing a foreign public official (who may or may not be the other person) in the exercise of the official's duties as a foreign public official in order to obtain or retain business or obtain or retain a business advantage which is not legitimately due.

Internationally, various similar legislation enables some other countries to prosecute their own citizens and corporations, as well as other persons within their jurisdiction, for bribery of public officials abroad.

A benefit can be non-monetary or intangible inducement offered directly to the foreign public official. It also includes benefits provided or offered by an agent. It is not relevant that the benefit is considered customary or perceived to be customary or tolerated.

The Company does not countenance the making of payments (including payments in kind such as gifts, favours, etc.) to influence individuals to award business opportunities to the Company or to make business decisions in the Company's favour.

In some countries in which the Company operates, employees may be asked to make small payments to low-level public officials or government employees, which are sometimes called facilitation payments. These payments are sought to expedite or bring about routine services or actions by those individuals. The Company does not support making these payments as a matter of policy, and expects employees and officers to make every effort to avoid them.

Where a payment of this kind cannot be resisted the payment must, at a minimum, be approved by the employee's supervisor and be accounted for clearly and accurately. A record must be kept detailing the value of the benefit, the date on which the conduct occurred, the identity of the foreign public official and particulars of the routine government action that was sought to be expedited or secured.

In addition, the Company must maintain an accurate and auditable record of all financial transactions in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. This includes maintaining appropriate records of all gifts, entertainment and payments to government officials, employees and others. Entries should not distort or disguise the true nature of any transaction.

This Code does not prohibit any payments, including facilitation payments, where these payments are made in accordance with the Criminal Code and this Code of Conduct.

This section of the Code of Conduct also applies to agents and third parties who are engaged by the Company to represent its interests.

The section is to be read in conjunction with the Company's Anti-Bribery and Corruption Policy which can be found on the Company's website at www.ltresources.com.au.

19 Compliance with the Code of Conduct

Any breach of compliance with this Code of Conduct is to be reported directly to the Managing Director, Chair or Report and Investigation Officer (if one is appointed), as appropriate. The Board should be informed of any material breaches of this Code of Conduct. Anyone breaching this Code of Conduct may be subject to disciplinary action, including termination.

20 Review of Code of Conduct

The Company will monitor compliance with this Code of Conduct periodically by liaising with the directors, officers and employees. Suggestions for improvements or amendments to this Code of Conduct can be made at any time by providing a written note to the Managing Director.

The Board will review the effectiveness of this Code of Conduct at least annually, and update it as required.
