

Liontown boss David Richards points out Kathleen Valley.

Liontown upgrades ore

STUART MCKINNON

Liontown Resources boss David Richards says the company will turn its attention to a pre-feasibility study for its Kathleen Valley lithium project near Leinster after yesterday unveiling a massive resource upgrade for the deposit.

The explorer yesterday lifted the resource at Kathleen Valley to 74.9 million tonnes at 1.3 per cent lithium and 140 parts per million tantalum, representing a 353 per cent jump on the 21.2Mt figure it announced in September last year.

The upgrade comprises three months of drilling over 25,000 metres completed last month, the results of which sent Liontown Resources share price from 2¢ in April to as high as 12.5¢.

Liontown shares hit a high of 12¢ yesterday before sliding back to close steady at 10.5¢.